

Chemeketa Community College Course Material Fee Program

What you need to know!

What is it?

Digital course materials are delivered to your e-learn course page on day one and charged on your student account at the best possible price on the market, so you don't have to shop around. Digital can mean an e-book, but most likely it is an interactive online learning tool.

How is it paid for?

Your digital course materials are charged as a Course Material Fee on your student account. When you pay your account or when your financial aid is dispersed the funds take care of your course materials.

How do you access the digital materials?

When logging into e-learn for your course there will be 2 links, one for your course materials, the other link will be opt-out.

What if you don't want it?

If you really don't want it you can opt-out and your account will be refunded after the add/drop date. If you drop the course before the add/drop deadline, you will automatically be refunded on your student account. If you opt-out your access will be turned off. The digital course materials were selected by your instructor as an important part of your learning experience and often a tool used for homework assignments. We have negotiated the best price on the market so you don't have to spend your time comparison shopping.

How do you opt-out?

Click on the Opt-out link, click the view course materials button, scroll to the bottom. Click the grey opt-out button and follow the prompts.

What if you really like to read a print book?

A note about access to your course materials. Most codes have an e-text, and the bookstore may have printed versions in the store at a good price. The book is not enough to get by, the digital content is required to pass the class.

Any questions?

Your Chemeketa Bookstore is here to help you if you have any questions, concerns, or you just want to let us know your thoughts about this new way of obtaining your course materials.
